Letter to the Community

Thanks to your generosity, 2013 was an exciting year for United Hospital.

In this 2013 Report to the Community, you'll read about the completion and opening of the Elaine S. Larson Surgery Center on page 13. The newly remodeled and expanded space has already earned rave reviews from staff.

Your donations to the smaller funds and endowments make an immeasurable difference in the lives of the communities in which we serve. Read the heart-warming story of how the Olivia Fund helps families at United Hospital deal with the unimaginable: losing a baby (page 6).

Jesse E. Edwards Fund (page 5) helps support the Jesse E. Edwards Registry of Cardiovascular Disease. The work of this team helps to accumulate data and trends to help prevent death, prolong life or offer treatment options in cardiovascular care.

Volunteers, the backbone of any not-for-profit, are highlighted on page 8. The work we do here at United would not be possible without the help of our volunteers. Just as the world of health care is changing, so is the world of hospital volunteers. Today's volunteers come from all walks of life, from the youngest at Camp United to those enjoying retirement.

Our donor profile features Paul Zech, president of Felhaber Larson Law Firm, a long standing supporter of the United Hospital Foundation. Read about our partnership and more about the law firm on page 2.

Gerry Hughes uses his executive experience with technology software business firms to serve as a board member of United Hospital Foundation and is profiled on page 3. Gerry has been actively involved in the United Golf Classic (page 12) for nine years.

As we look forward to 2014, we are excited to fundraise for our Birth Center to turn it into The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul. The Mother Baby Center is a partnership between United Hospital and Children's Hospital and Clinics of Minnesota.

We depend on the generosity of you, our donors, to bring new technology, new service offerings and new life to United Hospital. From volunteering of your time and talent, to supporting our fundraising goals, we thank you for all that you do for United Hospital Foundation.

Felhaber Larson:

Law Firm Shares a Long History with United Hospital

Paul Zech, president of Felhaber Larson Law Firm

The Felhaber Larson Law Firm and United Hospital share a long history in St. Paul. This history underlies the firm's long-standing support for United Hospital Foundation.

Felhaber Larson's roots in St. Paul date to 1928, when attorney Richard Felhaber began practicing law. He developed a specialty in labor law during the Depression and recruited partners Gustav Larson in 1943 and Robert Fenlon and Thomas Vogt in the 1950s.

Today Felhaber Larson has approximately 60 attorneys and 50 other staff members, who work in the firm's St. Paul and Minneapolis offices. Felhaber Larson specializes in labor relations and employment law and is also a full-service law firm serving businesses and individuals throughout the Midwest. The firm's labor and employment practice is particularly strong on behalf of health care organizations, said President Paul Zech.

The firm began representing the hospital industry in the 1960s. "We have been fortunate to represent United before it was in a system, and we have been honored to represent Allina Health for many years," Zech said.

Attorney Mark Mishek is another connection between Felhaber Larson and United. Mishek started his law career with Felhaber Larson. He became general counsel for United in 1981 and later executive vice president of law and public policy at Allina Health. Mishek served as United's president from 2003 to 2008.

Felhaber Larson's charitable support for United Hospital Foundation centers on the United Hospital Golf Classic and the Service to Humanity Gala. Zech and his wife Becky have attended the Gala for years.

"United Hospital is a crown jewel and a pivotal part of health care in St. Paul."

"The Gala is a spectacular event and amazingly well done. We see so many other sponsors at the Gala, and we know we're in good company," he said.

"United Hospital is a crown jewel, and a pivotal part of health care in St. Paul," Zech stated. "We are proud and committed to maintain our support to United Hospital Foundation."

Gerry Hughes: Applying Executive Experience to Board Service

Gerry Hughes uses his executive experience with technology software business firms to serve as a board member of United Hospital Foundation.

"I served as the vice president of services for companies like Lawson Software and Oracle, and my clients were health care systems," Hughes explained. "For many years I worked with doctors and health care executives to identify business problems that our firm could propose a product and services solution. I understand what goes on operationally in the hospital." During his tenure with Lawson, one of his clients was United Hospital.

"Brick-and-mortar projects are not built from the hospital's earnings, but by fundraising itself."

But his path to the United Hospital Foundation board came from a different direction. At a fundraising event, he sat next to longtime United Hospital Foundation board leader Norma Larson. As they talked about Hughes' business expertise and his experience as a board member for other organizations, Larson encouraged him to apply for a board position. Hughes began his United Hospital Foundation board service in January 2004.

"I enjoy giving back to the community in areas where I can have a positive impact," Hughes said. "I come from a family that gives back to the community, whether as philanthropists or as volunteers to support each organization's mission and objectives."

One of Hughes' main activities has been advisory board leadership for the United Hospital Golf Classic. "The Golf Classic committee is a very well-run, collaborative activity among board members, United Hospital Foundation staff and our primary event sponsor," Hughes explained. "I provide board direction and support. I've enjoyed my nine years of current service to support this committee."

In 24 years, the Golf Classic has raised over $2.5 million for United. The July 2013 tournament attracted 124 golfers and raised over $150,000 for the Elaine S. Larson Surgical Center at United. Proceeds from each Golf Classic are dedicated to the United Hospital Foundation fundraising priority.

Gerry Hughes, board member

Hughes explained that fundraising is essential to build or enhance facilities at United that provide an excellent experience for patients, along with the safest possible medical care. "Brick-and-mortar projects are not built from the hospital's earnings, but by fundraising itself," he noted.

Now that United's surgery center is completed, United Hospital Foundation's fundraising priority is renovating United's Birth Center. (See page 9.) "This will be our key initiative for the next few years," Hughes said. "The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul is important because when a family has a good birth experience, they will remember that and come back to United Hospital in the future."

Hughes' business acumen served him well during a two year term on the United Hospital Foundation board's executive committee. "The executive committee has total oversight for funding requests to the board," he said. "That requires an assessment of the business case for each request. I enjoyed serving on the committee, because as an operations guy, I could ask articulate questions and help to evaluate funding requests."

10 Years of Saving Lives at MSP Airport

A $130,000 donation from United Hospital Foundation equipped the Minneapolis – St. Paul International Airport with its first automated external defibrillators (AEDs). The foundation's contribution in 2003 outfitted the huge airport complex with 70 of these lifesaving devices.

“The airport owes its public access of AEDs to the foundation.”

Charles Lick, MD, medical director of Allina Health Emergency Medical Services, played a key role in linking United Hospital Foundation with this important public health need at the airport, which serves 33 million passengers a year. AEDs are crucial to saving the lives of people who experience sudden cardiac arrest, a leading cause of death.

The airport was unable to purchase the AEDs, because air travel and revenues dropped after the 2001 terrorist attacks. “United Hospital Foundation stepped up with its donation, and our airport became an early adopter of AEDs among airports in the United States,” Dr. Lick said.

Placing AEDs at the airport would have been impossible without funding from United Hospital Foundation, said Fire Chief David Burke of Minneapolis – St. Paul International Airport. “We continue to be very grateful to the foundation for its wonderful generosity,” Burke said. “The airport owes its public access of AEDs to the foundation.”

Dr. Lick leads the Allina Health program Heart Safe Communities, a broad effort to combat sudden cardiac arrest. Since 2001, the program has educated 35,000 people in AEDs and cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and placed 2,500 AEDs in the hands of first responders and in public places, businesses and schools.

Sudden cardiac arrest, an electrical malfunction in the heart, is different from a heart attack. Lives are saved when bystanders quickly locate and use AEDs, which give simple audio instructions.

The AED delivers an electric shock called defibrillation, resetting the heart's rhythm. Defibrillation needs to be given within four to five minutes after the person experiences the arrest. “For each additional minute of delay in defibrillation, the patient's success drops 7 to 10 percent,” Dr. Lick explained.

AEDs at the airport are used by travelers and employees, Burke said. “It's important that a person receives that first shock before the first responders arrive. Over the years people have come to expect AEDs in public places, just like fire extinguishers.”

The Jesse E. Edwards Endowment Fund

The Jesse E. Edwards Registry of Cardiovascular Disease (the Registry) is a consult laboratory examining over 1,500 hearts a year. The Registry has a collection of nearly 28,000 cardiac specimens and over 100,000 photographs. It provides a unique resource for local, national and international physicians which benefits every person interested in heart disease. The endowment fund keeps the Registry here at United.

The Registry was named after Jesse E. Edwards, MD, who made significant contributions to the field of cardiovascular disease. He is widely recognized as the first person to correlate clinical and pathological data in cardiology, and his work on the interplay between the heart and lungs is considered a medical landmark. He founded the Registry at Miller Hospital in the early 1960s.

Today, the Registry is located at United Hospital and led by Medical Director Shannon M. Mackey-Bojack, MD, a forensic and cardiovascular pathologist. Dr. Mackey-Bojack began her medical career interested in pediatric cardiovascular surgery. She soon found that she was more interested in understanding the conditions she was treating, however, and made the change to cardiovascular and forensic pathology. The scope of this work is broad and deep, and frequently includes conditions some doctors may never see.

Dr. Mackey-Bojack said, “We continue to provide research into all aspects of cardiovascular disease, including sudden death, genetics and more. As a consultant lab, we receive referred hearts and tissues from around the country. Additionally, each year we receive 200-250 referrals from medical examiners and hospital pathologists when a cause of death or diagnosis is complicated.” Once the specimen is received, more tests are run to help determine the cause of death. All specimens are kept onsite. In fact, the Registry has hearts dating back to 1947.

The importance of the Registry

In 2005, Dr. Mackey-Bojack was contacted by a mother whose son died suddenly at an early age. When no cause of death was identified, this mother turned to other sources for an answer. She was worried about her other two children and wanted to make sure the cause was not genetic. And if it was, she wanted to know that, too, to help inform care plans.

She did some research, found the Registry and contacted Dr. Mackey-Bojack whose examination found the heart displayed findings not previously described. Over the next 18 months, she identified similar cases also recently referred to the Registry and determined the cause to be a cardiomyopathy, a potentially inheritable condition of the heart muscle. She was able to share that information with a very concerned mother who, in turn, shared it with her children.

You can help save lives

“Nobody likes to talk about death. While we wish we didn’t have to do what we do, we know we are helping to prevent death,” said Dr. Mackey-Bojack. “By accumulating data and trends, we can help prevent death, prolong life or offer treatment options.”

A woman with curly brown hair, wearing a black top, sits at a table covered with a light-colored quilt. She is smiling at the camera. On the table in front of her are several items: a small box containing a white stuffed animal, a book titled 'Babies, Toddlers, Preschool Years', and a pink and white patterned cloth. In the background, there is a wooden cabinet with various items on it, including a white teapot and a teddy bear, and a window with orange and red striped curtains.

'The Items Inside Were So Precious'

Now, parent Melody Johnson leads the boxes project, turning her grief into something positive. Melody and Erik Johnson were expecting their third child in 2012. In the 33rd week of pregnancy, Melody felt her baby have a series of seizures. Her doctor told the couple that baby Solveig Sofia had died in the womb; after her birth they learned the cause was an umbilical cord accident.

The Johnsons chose the Birth Center at United for Solveig's delivery. They were surprised to receive a memory box from their nurse. She encouraged them to look through it before Melody's labor was induced and think about how they could use the items in the few hours they'd spend with Solveig.

"Immediately upon opening the box, the tears began to pour from our eyes," Melody recalled. "Knowing that we qualified to receive this box was humbling, and yet another reality of our situation. The real gift was that the items inside were so precious, and were indeed helpful in preparing us to have our baby. They were also helpful for our children, helping us have tangible memories of our daughter and their sister."

Several weeks later, Melody kept thinking about how much the box meant to her family. She talked with Annette Klein, RN, who works with bereaved families at the Birth Center. Klein explained that the boxes are provided as gifts from other families who had experienced losses. Klein said she needed a new coordinator for the box project and gently asked whether Melody was interested.

After several weeks of thinking and praying, Melody said yes. The boxes she assembles are called Solveig's Boxes. Each contains a letter to parents, which explains the importance of making physical mementos. "We hope that you can find comfort in the memories that your child has left behind for you. We pray that these items can ease your burden even a little bit," the letter states.

For Melody and Erik, helping other families has been vital to their own healing process. "We've been able to take our sadness and grief and turn some of it around into a positive project to help others in the community," Melody said. "It is really a humbling honor to be part of their journey."

How You Can Support the Olivia Fund

Donations to the Olivia Fund at United Hospital Foundation are essential to supporting families who experience loss at the Birth Center.

Items in the memory boxes are carefully chosen to help parents comfort their babies and create mementos. Among the items: a handmade blanket and flannel warmer; baby bath soap and washcloth; a handprint/footprint memory kit; a memory box for hair clippings and hospital bracelet; a small teddy bear; a CD of lullabies; two books to help parents with their grief; a beaded bracelet for the mother with a footprint charm.

Melody Johnson, the parent who coordinates the memory boxes, convinced craftspeople, artists and store managers to make donations or give generous discounts. Still, each box costs about $66.

She explained how donors can make a difference by contributing to the Olivia Fund: "Please remember the families who will be receiving the boxes. They will be facing unimaginable grief and sorrow. It is our heart's desire that the items in the boxes can help to ease their sorrow, even just a small bit. The boxes will help them to create lasting memories with the child that they are saying goodbye to all too soon."

Volunteers are the backbone of United Hospital

Just as the world of health care is changing, so is the world of hospital volunteers. “Our volunteers come from all walks of life. A lot of volunteers are newly retired, active and willing to be on their feet for long periods of time. And we have a lot of younger, middle and high school age volunteers. We even had one volunteer feel so strongly about nursing that she established her own fund, The Julie Cohen United Hospital Volunteer and Nursing Education Fund, specifically designed for those volunteers who are also pursuing nursing degrees,” said Pat Hanzal, Volunteer and Guest Services manager.

The changing demographics create an exciting volunteer program to serve United Hospital’s guest and patient needs. When Pat Hanzal took over the volunteer department in 2006, the average age of a volunteer was 76. In 2013, the average age was 30. Today’s volunteers are younger, they volunteer as part of their life before retirement and many are students from local colleges and high schools. They also bring an influx of greater diversity of cultures, talents and interest. The volunteer program matches the diversity in today’s changing hospital operations. The program has over 690 volunteers who contribute their time and talents on a regular basis. And more volunteers are needed.

Training

Volunteers are required to complete appropriate training before they are assigned volunteer tasks in the hospital. These include medical checks, patient privacy concerns and training on the hospital philosophy of service to others. A computerized system of scheduling makes it easier to manage such a large and diverse number of volunteers. Volunteers complement and work under the direction of staff.

Camp United

“A lot of junior volunteers were being recruited and trained but they would only volunteer once or twice,” said Pat. Her team started something special to help keep younger volunteers engaged: Camp United.

Camp United is United Hospital’s summer volunteer program for middle and high school students age 14-17. Six, two-week camp sessions are offered throughout the summer. Camp United is the perfect solution for busy students who want to impact the community by volunteering.

“Campers” help patients, families and staff by performing various duties in Guest Services, Patient Discharge Service, Gift Shop, Patient Services and more. Some camp volunteers return every year and can become a “camp counselor,” leading newer camp volunteers.

How You Can Help

“We are always looking for more daytime volunteers,” Pat Hanzal said. “Consider becoming a volunteer or refer your friends and family. United recognizes the contribution volunteers play in making it the right kind of place for patients and their families to feel comfortable when receiving care.”

And if supporting our mission to provide excellent care, as we prevent illness, restore health and provide comfort to all who entrust us with their care isn’t enough, volunteers frequently say, “I get a lot of exercise. I don’t need a club membership, I just volunteer.”

The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul

United Hospital Foundation is beginning a fundraising campaign to upgrade the Birth Center into The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul.

Focused on seamless care from routine deliveries to complex, high-risk births, The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul will continue to be the east metro's only tertiary care center for infants born before 32 weeks gestation. The 62-bed newborn intensive care unit (NICU) is one of the largest, most sophisticated Level III nurseries in Minnesota. The NICU cares for a large share of the state's highest risk babies and has some of the best outcomes in the world.

The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul will include a total of 30,000 square feet of new space and remodeled existing units to offer larger, more comfortable rooms.

Additional features include:

- 7 triage rooms
- 11 new large labor and delivery rooms. Approximately 375 square feet, each room provides resuscitation areas, generous clear space for medical teams, baby warmers and equipment.
- 2 rooms with tubs for mothers who choose to labor in water.
- 30 postpartum rooms with larger spaces for family, friends and care givers. Each will be approximately 220 square feet.

- 14 rooms for mothers on bedrest, that can also serve as postpartum rooms
- 3 new operating rooms
- 3 post-anesthesia recovery rooms
- Each room will have a rolling cabinet for the family's clothing and belongs, and will move with the family after birth, eliminating the need to repack
- Expanded facilities for staff

United Hospital Foundation is raising funds to help cover the expected cost of building/renovation, equipment and furnishings. The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's-St. Paul will be the vital resource the community deserves. Families will be able to say without reservation, "There is no place but United to have a baby."

Celebrating the Hearts of Women

Mothers, daughters and friends came together to recognize American Heart Month at the Celebrating the Hearts of Women Tea hosted by the United Hospital Foundation on February 12.

Guests enjoyed the English Tea, held at The Saint Paul Hotel, cooking and exercise demonstrations and concluded with a presentation by Elizabeth Tuohy, MD, Cardiologist, United Heart & Vascular Clinic/Medical Director, Heart Disease Prevention Clinic. Dr. Tuohy's informative presentation covered heart disease, risk factors, how to survive a heart attack, obesity rates, portion control, physical activity and that prevention is in our hands.

United and United Heart & Vascular Clinic are proud to rank in the top 10 percent of hospitals in the nation for opening blocked arteries in the heart quickly. The faster a patient's arteries are opened, the greater chance for reducing heart damage and recovering successfully. This is just one of many remarkable achievements that showcase the quality partnerships, dedicated staff and state-of-the art techniques that make the Nasseff Heart Center a state and national leader in heart care.

Elaine S. Larson Surgical Center Opens

Thanks to the generosity of our donors, the Elaine S. Larson Surgical Center officially opened on Friday, Jan. 24.

Prior to the renovation,

United Hospital's operating rooms averaged between 315 and 469 square feet, too small to meet the current standards of 600 square feet including minimally invasive procedures.

The entire scope of project:

1. Reconfigured 15 operating rooms, with operating suites sized to at least 600 square feet.
2. Installed ceiling mounted booms for equipment to eliminate floor cabling and reduce the need for equipment carts or towers.
3. Integrated technology for connectivity issues, making it easier to display data on one flat panel monitor.
4. Integrated technology platforms, systems and power outlets.
5. Improved lighting.
6. Improved storage space to include a centralized location accessible for each of the operating rooms.
7. Improved flow for patients and staff.
8. Built a new post-anesthesia care unit.
9. Remodeled Doctors' Lounge.
10. Created Staff Lounge and Staff Locker Rooms.

Philanthropy is Best When it is Needed

What is philanthropy? The Merriam-Webster definition is: “the practice of giving money and time to help make life better for other people.” When one becomes a philanthropist, he or she is usually referred to as a humanitarian. To be a philanthropist is a worthy goal to strive for, but unfortunately it is a goal that one finds easy to procrastinate about. There are benefits one gets from starting a philanthropic program during one’s lifetime and these are personal satisfaction, an ability to have control during life, and the ability to shape one’s legacy.

There are a number of different means to achieve philanthropy, as I have noted before in previous articles. The use of a Private Foundation requires managers and the setting up of the means to perpetuate the foundation beyond one’s own existence. The size of the initial gift and the plan to add to it usually make the Private Foundation a preferable choice for some. However, in many cases, one wants some simpler means to achieve similar goals. The best result may then be the use of a donor advised fund that one can continue to add to in later years.

The questions one needs to ask themselves are: Do I have some pet charities that I want to provide for now? What type of recognition do I want to receive now? Where can I do the most good today? Do I just want to provide for the betterment of others after I have exhausted any current needs for my wealth?

The point is that each one of us is different and we may view that our legacy is not just to our own families but may also be to the community as a whole. The decisions one makes are to be taken after discussing them with others that may include only one’s family or with exclusion of one’s family. It is a choice for each of us, and it usually requires meeting with our own financial advisors as to how to best achieve the charitable goals we set. There are a number of vehicles out there that can make one a philanthropist while replacing overall family wealth.

The best advice I can give you is to start your charitable plans now since the needs are out there.

Community Engagement Update

As part of the Affordable Care Act, not-for-profit hospitals are required to conduct a Community Health Needs Assessment every three years and adopt an implementation strategy to meet the needs identified.

In 2013, United Hospital completed its assessment in collaboration with community members, community organizations, local public health representatives, and internal stakeholders at United Hospital. These partners assisted in the development of the hospital’s community health priorities and implementation plan.

The implementation plan demonstrates how United Hospital will partner with and support community and clinical programs that positively impact the three identified health needs in 2014-2016:

- healthful eating and physical activity
- obesity
- health care access.

Part of United’s implementation strategy includes Allina Health initiatives such as:

- Neighborhood Health Connection™

- School Health Connection™
- Free Bikes 4 Kidz
- Health Powered Kids™
- Healthy Communities Partnership
- Mission Matters program.

For more information on Community Involvement, visit allinahealth.org.

Named Funds and Their Importance

A named fund is a way to ensure that your gift provides revenue for your desired charitable organization or purpose. A gift for a named fund can either be designated for an endowment fund or a temporarily restricted fund. Named funds are funded by taxable donations. When establishing a named fund, we recommend careful thought. For example, the fund name could include your family name or name of a loved one whom you wish to memorialize.

Why Establish a Named Fund?

United Hospital is committed to meeting the challenges of changing technology, providing state-of-the-art facilities and improving the healing experience for our patients, families and employees. It is only with continued support that we can secure our future. With planning, it is possible to create a lasting legacy with the establishment of a named fund. A fund can be used to educate staff or patients, provide new technology, advance research, or support us in providing exceptional care — a true investment in United.

To learn more about a named fund, contact the United Hospital Foundation at 651-241-8022.

FUND SPOTLIGHT:

The Mother Baby Center at United and Children's–St. Paul

United Hospital Foundation is leading a fundraising campaign to build a Birth Center that will be the vital resource our community needs.

One of the largest and busiest birth centers in Minnesota, the Birth Center has a sterling reputation for excellent medical care. The Birth Center provides a unique service in the St. Paul area: It serves women expecting routine births and is fully prepared for any complication that mothers and infants may experience. In fact, approximately 17 percent of patients choose United because of a diagnosed pregnancy complication or because the infant was born prematurely.

The Mother Baby Center is a partnership between United Hospital and Children's Hospitals and Clinics of Minnesota.

On Monday, February 3, the City of Saint Paul, Department of Parks and Recreation, Saint Paul Garden Club and Ramsey County Master Gardeners recognized the Goff & Boysen Memorial and Honoring Garden with the Bronze Bloom Award.

The award promotes and recognizes beautification efforts by Saint Paul's citizens through gardens and art in the public realm. Established in 2011, the garden has provided visitors and staff a beautiful place to take a break from the hospital routine, relax and contemplate.

Various levels of naming opportunities exist. For details, visit unitedhopsital.com/unitedfoundation or call: 651-241-8024.
